Commission Consortium Affiliate Institutes' Localized Honor Code Themes

America's Education 911 Justice-Plus Campaign
An outreach of the American Academic Accreditation Commission Consortium of Online Institutes

> Explore the proposed campus, headquarters, renderings, and pro forma:
> USA Flagship Campus and National Headquarters Concept Dossier

A framework rooted in each community

Each qualified new city college or university board hall would pursue an open-innovation license and work toward key milestones in organizing and using essential learning resources. Its governing body would obtain the public approvals needed to establish the institution and coordinate with consortium institutes serving the eastern, central, and western United States.

Participating institutions would convene at, or join, annual summits. Their localized honor codes would reflect the values of the communities they serve, as determined by their governing bodies, while sharing common principles that can support a nationwide framework.

Common guiding themes

- The Golden Rule: Treat others with the consideration and respect one would wish to receive, connecting local responsibility with America's 250th-anniversary era.
- Olympism: Bring together education, culture, and the development of mind, body, and will through the joy of effort, ethical conduct, and mutual respect.
- Equal justice under law: Draw on the civic ideal expressed above the entrance to the Supreme Court of the United States.
- Love of neighbor: Express, in concise and accurate plain English, the enduring teaching "Love your neighbor as yourself" (Leviticus 19:18), while allowing communities to reflect on the original or other languages.

These themes would give localized honor codes a shared foundation without displacing each governing body's responsibility to represent the community it serves.

Civic, educational, and spiritual context

The Supreme Court's entrance inscription, "EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW," faces the plaza across from the United States Capitol. The Court building also contains the Great Hall and a basketball court above the Courtroom.

The initiative recalls the welcome extended in the Great Hall to future consortium-affiliated chancellors, including a national honoree and a former national champion in Latin America. Its history also includes Discovery Science's interest in filming the latter with colleagues at a former U.S. National Institutes of Health branch hospital.

The proposed honor-code framework combines these civic and educational references with enduring ethical teachings in the Bible. The Courtroom's artwork depicts Moses with tablets bearing Hebrew text associated with the Ten Commandments. The traditional opening of a Court session concludes with the invocation, "God save the United States and this Honorable Court."

For participating communities, the purpose is to translate these themes into clear commitments to justice, compassion, service, and respect for human dignity. Each localized code would connect common principles with the community's own values and educational responsibilities.

Learning in service of people

Your gift will advance learning for the healing of the soul of America. Scholastic attainment and eloquence find their fullest purpose when joined with a deep concern for people:

> "No amount of scholastic attainment, of able and profound exposition, of brilliant and stirring eloquence, can atone for the absence of a deep impassioned, sympathetic love of human souls."

Through practical planning, responsible institutional development, and community participation, this initiative seeks to make that commitment visible in the life of each proposed college or university.

Further reading:
Supreme Court building features
Supreme Court interior architecture guide
Supreme Court procedures

Campaign beneficiary: Christ University Fund, a 501(c)(3) public charity
Campaign contact: Jeffrey G. Nutt, J.D. · com@AAACOM.org